OSPREY MARITIME EMPLOYERS' LIABILITY

Comprehensive cover for your employees whilst working on board vessels or overwater

OSPREY MARITIME EMPLOYER'S LIABILITY

Maritime Employer's Liability offers insurance specifically designed to provide cover for employees who may be required to operate on or from vessels from time to time but where their employer does not own or operate the vessel itself.

MEETING CONTRACTUAL OBLIGATIONS

Maritime Employer's Liability is particularly important in the United States for marine contracting firms whose employees may find remedy for death or personal injury under the Jones Act, despite the employee being shore-side for the majority of time.

- Under US federal law, the Jones Act, masters and members of the crew are not restricted to statutory compensation acts (State Workers' Compensation) and may sue their employers for injuries sustained in the course of employment
- This insurance is often contractually required of a sub-contractor as part of the job specification
- Cover available on Worldwide basis, tailored to Geographic and Nationality status.

Osprey Maritime Employer's Liability can call on Thomas Miller's global reach to support claims quickly and efficiently, anywhere in the world.

INDIVIDUAL APPLICATIONS REQUIRED

All applicants are required to fully complete and sign an application form to be submitted via their appointed broker to Thomas Miller Specialty. You can download an application form from our website or obtain a form through your appointed broker.

Policies are backed and secured by Lloyd's of London, A rated by Standard and Poors.

TAILORED COVER

Each Product can be underwritten on policy forms specifically written, often with the applicant's broker, to meet the needs of the insured.
